Society of Registered Safety Officers Annual Safety Seminar 2018

Theme : Review on RSO System

8 June 2018 (Friday) 2:00 pm – 6:00 pm

Ballrooms I-III, L6, Royal Plaza Hotel,
193 Prince Edward Road West, Kowloon

Overview

Early in 1987, the registration scheme of Safety Officer (RSO) was initiated to match the enactment of the Factories and Industrial Undertakings (Safety Officers and Safety Supervisors) regulation. Current Continuing Professional Development (CPD) Programme for RSO has been in effect from 2002. In the intervening years since 2002, the Programme has come under industry scrutiny. Some quarters of the industry have questioned the effectiveness of the Programme in fulfilling its objectives. Recently some industry stakeholders have taken the initiative to propose a revision of the Programme to meet the changing expectations of the industry in the foreseeable future. In the Annual Safety Seminar this year, representatives from various sectors will elaborate their point of view to such move and explore how this drives the development of safety and health professionals as well as the whole industry.

Who should attend

This event would be most suitable for those in a position of leading on occupational safety and health management within the business, including registered safety officers, safety and health professionals, safety engineers and occupational hygienists.

Moreover, we most welcome the students who are interested in aspiring as a registered safety officer after their graduation to attend the seminar.

Fees

The fee for the seminar is HK$600 (include refreshment). SRSO members and members of the Hong Kong Federation of Occupational Safety and Health Associations are entitled to a discounted price of HK$400 and HK$500 respectively. It is free of charge for full time undergraduate students.

Attendance certificate

An attendance certificate with 4 CPD hours will be issued to participant upon completion of the seminar.
